

75 Projects Win 2017 International Architecture Awards

John Hill

The Chicago Athenaeum: Museum of Architecture and Design and The European Centre for Architecture Art Design and Urban Studies have announced the 75 projects from 28 countries that have won 2017 International Architecture Awards.

Billed as "the most rigorous and prestigious awards program for new buildings designed across the globe," the International Architecture Awards honor a wide range of new projects, including skyscrapers, commercial buildings, urban plans, private residences, and real estate projects, which "achieve a high standard of excellence in design, construction, planning, and sustainability."

The full list of the 75 winners is below, in the order presented by the Chicago Athenaeum and European Centre, and with links provided for World-Architects member firms. The winners will be exhibited in Athens, Greece, from 8 September - 1 October 2017 at the Contemporary Space Athens.
