

Designare

biters of Designer Living | November 2010

HOMME

LUXE
TUX

ORMAL RESSING
ASES UP

TALIAN
CON

LANOTTA'S CONSTANT EVOLUTION

TS PERSONAL
ALFRED DUNHILL'S
BESPOKE PERFECTION

POINT MEN

V'S NEW LEADS ARE TOUGH & BUFF

BUZZSTOP: GETAWAYS

Witness the rebirth of art in Paris with the infusion of new life in iconic landmarks, elevating the city's creative scene for the next generation. From digital to performance arts, Deputy Mayor of Paris for Culture, Mr Christophe Girard highlights several up and coming art destinations for your next trip to La Ville-Lumière. By HAFIZ RASID

NEW KID ON THE BLOCK

Gaité Lyrique

Digital arts find a new home in the heart of Paris with La Gaité Lyrique. Scheduled to open in March next year, the venue will be an exciting new direction for the city's burgeoning digital arts scene.

"The Gaité Lyrique is the first digital arts place in Paris. It was once an old traditional theatre and is now under renovation by a great architect, Manuelle Gautrand. It will be a real strong architectural landmark to visit. At the Digital Nights Singapore, all the artists were talking about it!"

Photography VINCENT FILLON, MANUELLE GAUTRAND ARCHITECTURE

ARTISTIC COMMUTE

Paris Métro

In Paris, art isn't just contained within the walls of museums and galleries. It's everywhere. What better way to appreciate the arts than on your way about town. In a mix of old and new, the Abbesses Station beautifully displays a Art Nouveau glass canopy and graffiti-covered walls – the perfect metaphor of classic French style merging with contemporary times.

"Don't forget to visit the Paris Métro; there are a numerous pieces of art around station – so it's an interesting concept of enjoying art beyond the museum and galleries."

Photography 1 AMÉLIE DUPONT, PATRICE THÉBAULT, MICHEL ANGOT