

Architecture + Design's top 12 articles for 2020

Branko Miletic

Here is the official list of the month-by-month top articles that appeared in Architecture + Design this year.

What a year this has been. Bushfires. Floods. COVID-19. And that was just the first three months.

Through all the smoke haze, the water and those on-again, off-again lockdowns, we have been publishing the most interesting and newsworthy stories about the architecture, building, construction and design sectors.

So on that note, here are the top 12 Architecture + Design articles listed by the month they appeared, out of the total 1540 stories we published this year.

1. January

Green light for new community building at Parramatta Square

Construction will soon begin on a new civic, cultural and community building at the Parramatta Square precinct following its approval by the Sydney Central City Planning Panel.

Designed by a consortium of Australian firms DesignInc and Lacoste + Stevenson in collaboration with French firm Manuelle Gautrand Architecture for the City of Parramatta Council, the new $130 million community building, 5 Parramatta Square will comprise of a public library, café and meeting rooms available for the public across its six storeys.

<https://www.architectureanddesign.com.au/news/green-light-for-new-community-building-at-parra>