

dezeen

10 impressive architecture projects designed by women

Natasha Levy | 9 March 2018 | 4 comments

In light of International Women's Day, we've rounded up a series of architecture projects designed by women, from Odile Decq's bright-red bubble house to Amanda Levete's undulating MAAT museum.

Forum of Saint-Louis by Manuelle Gautrand

To break down the size of this exhibition centre in France, architect Manuelle Gautrand divided it into 13 gabled blocks. Gautrand – who heads her eponymous practice in Paris – chose to clad the structure in orange-hued perforated metal to give the impression of unoxidised copper.

Learn more about the Forum of Saint-Louis